How to Fight Tuberculosis

In a paper read last year before the Bexar County Medical Society and published in part in the Louisville "Medical Progress," Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, a physician who has devoted much time to the study of tuberculosis, said: "Since time suits constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations, or natural starvation causes with tuberculosis, malnutrition. The widespread and unchecked spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to the defective use of this remedy doubtless is due to the combination of this salt in such a way as to render it easily assimilable. It causes no stomach disturbance, and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try."

Bekman's Alternative has effected remarkable results in numerous cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and allied chronic affections of the throat and bronchial passages. In many instances such conditions, apparently, have yielded completely to it. In case your druggist is out of it, ask him to order, or send direct to us. ## PROPOSED QUARANTINE FOR CHESTNUT BARK DISEASE

Washington, D. C., May 5.—The chestnut bark disease has become so serious that in the opinion of the United States Department of Agriculture it is desirable to quarantine New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, North Carolina, Iowa, and Nebraska, or such portions thereof as may be found to be essential. A public hearing on this question will be held in Washington at 10 o'clock on May 18. The proposed quarantine will restrict the movement from this territory of chestnut nursery stock and chestnut lumber with the bark on.

The chestnut bark disease is comparatively recent in this country. Its origin is not absolutely known, but it is believed that it was brought in indirectly from China, where it exists also. In 1908 it was found widely distributed in the Hudson River Valley and in the vicinity of New York city.

high water mark being 134 two years ago. The score made by Lyon beat the championship figures established by R. L. Spotts in 1911 by four birds. The former title holder was 15th on the list in the recent tourney. It was a spectacular contest owing to the fact that the winner was in doubt right up to the minute when the last string of 25 birds was being disposed of. Paper picture shows race at Travers Island, lower one, former champion R. L. Spotts.

It is caused by a fungus which rapidly kills the native chestnut trees and is spread chiefly by the distribution of nursery stock. Once it has been established, however, it is spread locally by wind, birds, and insects. Migratory birds may also carry the disease for long distances.

Since this disease is proving fatal to the native chestnuts in the infected area, it is quite probable that their place may be taken by chestnut orchards grown for the nuts in areas that have not as yet been infected and from which it is hoped that the proposed quarantine will keep out the infection. At the present time the native chestnut grows in practically all of the territory east of the Mississippi (except a section of the coastal plain of the Southern States, the northern half of Maine, and parts of Illinois and Michigan). For two years after the tree has been killed by the fungus the timber remains valuable, but deterioration sets in after that time.

KIRK BROWN AT THE COLONIAL ALL NEXT WEEK

In presenting to the theatre-going public of Portsmouth at the Colonial Monday matinee, that notable production of "Thais" is announced. Manager McDonough wishes to announce that it is Mr. Brown's most important production. A most romantic story is the play. Thais, a noted Courtesan of beauty and power, during the early Christian era of Alexandria ruled and reigned the entire empire. Payson, a Roman Monk of Christian honor makes a journey from the Libyan Desert to see this noted woman, and by his beautiful teachings finally induces Thais to give up the life she is leading and she adopts the veil of the White Sisters in the Libyan Deserts, where her Christian work reveals the character of the good woman.

Mr. Brown gives the masterly portrayal of Payson, a part admirably fitted to this able actor, while Thais is played by Miss Edna Earl Andrews, whose conception of the part is one of finish.

The cast requires the strength of the entire company and is the best ever in Mr. Brown's support. No more pretentious offering has ever been presented at popular prices and for magnificence of costuming and scene splendor its superior is rarely even at high prices. It will be offered at the Colonial Monday matinee. "The Woman in the Case" is the play for Monday evening. This powerful dramatic production is from the pen of that noted playwright Clyde Fitch, and one of the strongest plays of its nature seen in years. Mr. Brown produces a different play at each performance in a manner never before seen in this city at popular prices.

Matinees will be given daily at 10 and 20c. Evenings, 10c, 20c, 30c and 50c. Sale opens Friday at 9 a. m.

HOW TO SELECT WALL PAPER

You are now choosing new wallpaper and your choice can make or mar your rooms. Big patterns must never be hung in small rooms a dull, dark room must not be papered with red, blue or a deep green. A dull aspect will be improved by pale pink or yellow tones while delicate shades of gray, mauve, fawn, or purple will look well in a sunny room.

Your furniture carpets and hangings must also be considered for harmony is everything.

Study Harmony Instead of definitely choosing your paper from a small and totally inadequate square in a book have a roll of one or two you specially favor sent to the house, and hang a couple of lengths by a nail on the wall of the room so that you may get a really good idea as to how it will look. If you have a paper for your ceiling it should be as pale as a wash, and in an ordinary small house avoid heavy ornate relief designs.

Don't have blue calcimine on your ceiling unless your paper is of a blue shade. Whatever the color of your paper, there should be the faintest possible suspicion of it on your ceiling.

PARLIAMENT IS SPLIT ON DRINK

British Nationalists to Fight the Liquor Tax and Laborites May Join Them

London, May 4.—Following a conference of the Nationalist members of Parliament, it was announced they had decided to oppose the new cabinet drink tax.

This is the first open break in Parliament since the outbreak of the war, and it is feared may prove the entangling wedge to more serious dissensions. It is considered certain that many of the laborites will support the Nationalists in their stand. They are bitter over the continual persecution by the government leaders of the charge that the workers of the nation in reality are drunkards.

The labor leaders plan to make an open protest in Parliament against the charge that, through drink, their followers have seriously impeded British success in the war. They will cite figures to show that the contrary is the case. One concrete instance to be cited is that of Edward Cook of Enfield, employed at the Royal Small Arms factory at Enfield, Cook died, the death certificate says, of "strain due to protracted hours of labor." Coroner Forbes' certificate set forth that the long hours were made necessary by the demand for munitions.

The London Daily Citizen, organ of the laborites, in discussing Cook's death, says:

"Cook worked himself to death. There are thousands of men who are working to meet national emergency demands under an equal strain. Some are able to do it; others are not. The injustice of putting down the effects of this strain, wholly to the vice of self-indulgence, is so palpable and gross that to attempt to rebut such a charge would be an insult to the men who have in this way responded to the country's call. One aspect of the facts—the long spell of high pressure and overtime—is kept out of sight; another much less important in its effects, is thrown up as the whole explanation. To all who have been and are concerned in this misrepresentation is a discredit."

The labor leaders also will challenge the figures of the government that there has been a rise in wages to 200,000 workers amounting to $105,000 weekly. It will be claimed in Parliament that, while the increase in wages is so, it comes to the workers merely because they are working overtime. The manufacturers and not the workers, the claim is to be made, are the ones who benefit.

"THE REVOLT"

Tremendous Sensation of the New Edward Locke Play at the Shubert Theatre, Boston

One of the most sensational successes of the season is "The Revolt," presented at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, the past week. The second week of this great success begins next Monday, May 10.

It comes to Boston direct from the successful engagement at the Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York City, with the original New York cast and production. The play is by Edward Locke, who is better known to Boston theatergoers through such powerful plays from his pen as "The Outcast" and

"The Case of Becky." When Ibsen sent Nora forth from the "Doll's House" he left her for a contentious world to puzzle over. Mr. Edward Locke in "The Revolt" has sent another Nora forth from her child and husband, but recognizing the fact that the tragedies of life do not necessarily end in death or despair, he has brought her back again chastened by the taste of life that was not for her. The salient feature of this new drama of Mr. Locke is that it is intensely human. Its characters are neither soulless villains nor haloed saints, but living, pulsating beings, who might be one's next door neighbors.

"The Revolt" is a graphic picture of a home disrupted by a husband's selfish desire to live in his life according to his own sensual desires. Vincent Serrano as the profligate husband is seen to excellent advantage. The part of the revolting wife is played by Alma Berwin with fervor and dramatic power. Matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday.

OUR DAILY CABLE LETTER

Petrograd, May 4.—It is a vote of the Russian people were taken today on the subject of re-establishing the traffic in vodka. I doubt if the drink demon would poll twenty per cent.

Russia, from one of the most drunk in the world, has become the most sober country in the world.

Rich are in the same boat with the poor. Not only vodka shops are closed, but beer, wine and other alcoholic drinks are prohibited in clubs and fine restaurants.

An investigation a few years ago by the Imperial Technical society showed that among the workmen in factories sixty-nine per cent. took alcoholic liquors regularly.

Today the only drinking left is secret consumption of eau-de-cologne, or even a kind of varnish, by a few friends whom the drink habit has enslaved.

As for the masses, life both in town and country has altogether changed. Provinces two thousand miles apart tell the same story. Where formerly quarrels, fights and even serious crimes were common on every holiday now there is good will and good order.

Workmen in the towns and the peasants are saving money, dressing better, and are altogether better off, notwithstanding the fact that rates and taxes are heavier this year than ever before.

A short time ago a number of "zemstvo" or County Councils, made an exhaustive inquiry amongst the peasants as to the results on the villages of the prohibition of alcohol. The peasants were asked to say whether they thought the prohibition ought to be discontinued after the war, or that things should remain always as they are at present.

The answer in nearly all cases was that, long as the vodka shop was open they were too weak to keep away from it, though they fully realized it was practically poison to them as well as tending to pauperize them and their families.

"We swore at vodka," writes one, "but we still went on drinking it from sheer habit and because it seemed simply impossible to leave it off."

Almost all the most recent popular songs deal with the subject of the blessing brought to the population by the prohibition of vodka. M. Yanukoff has published recently in Novoe Vremia thirty-three popular songs now being sung in the villages of the Pskoff. Eighteen of these chants the praises of the new law as to vodka and the blessing it has brought, especially to the women and the home.

But the greatest blessing from the prohibition of alcoholic drinks are expected. Not only vodka shops are closed, but beer, wine and other alcoholic drinks are prohibited in clubs and fine restaurants. Army surgeons bear testimony to the fact that operations are much more easily performed upon the soldiers who have not been able to get drunk, they are more easily brought under the influence of the anaesthetic administered and their wounds are healed in a much shorter time. They prove this by referring to their experience during the Russo-Japanese war. For this reason a very large proportion of those who had been wounded were able to return to the front.

The extraordinary paucity of officers and men to withstand the effects of the monotony of life in the trenches is also accounted for by the fact of their abstention from alcohol, and even the fatigues of marching during which they sometimes do not get any sleep for two days and night; do not tell on their strength as they used to in former days.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Washington May 4, 1915.

My dear Senator:—

I am sure you will be interested in the facts respecting our foreign trade and its reaction upon our domestic commercial and financial situation.

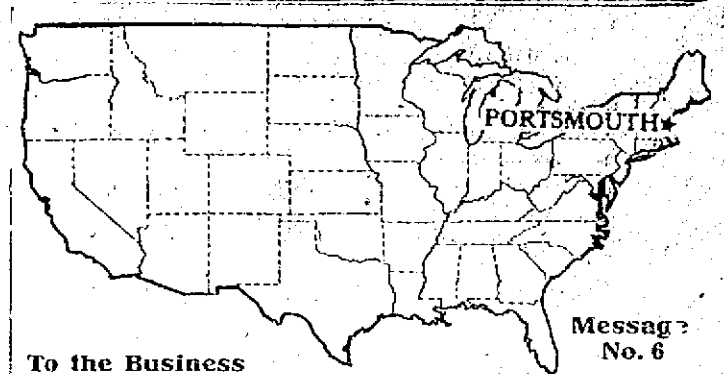

Stated briefly, our exports for the nine months of the fiscal year ending with March 31 have reached the unparalleled total of $1,933,755,580 indicating an approximate total for the full fiscal year of $2,750,000,000. The apparent balance in our favor on merchandise transactions in this foreign trade up to the 17th of April (the date for half of April being estimated) is $761,000,000. Unless some unforeseen change in the export movement occurs this favorable balance will reach if not exceed a thousand millions during the current fiscal year.

This is of itself sufficient to make American hearts glad but certain factors add greatly to its weight. It includes the month of August, in which the substantial stoppage of our exports for a fortnight resulted in an unfavorable balance of nineteen millions. It is coincident with the absence of an expenditure on the part of American travelers abroad, estimated at not about $170,000,000 per annum and also with the absorption by us of large but undetermined amounts of American securities owned abroad by reason of which the interest on the securities thus purchased is now paid to us instead of to others. Not only, therefore, is the favorable balance remarkable in itself but it is not subject to the offsets that have heretofore been usual.

It is of course a pity that we are still paying such high rates for ocean transportation that foreign carriers are thereby prospering at our cost while we remain in the humiliating position of depending upon foreign navies to protect the movement of our own commerce which we ought to control but do not. From the far east as well as from the Atlantic come the cry for shipping, and it speaks conservatively to say that the business movement which shows such wonderful results would be greatly enlarged if vessels were available under American control to take the traffic whence and whither American commerce desired to have it go.

Some Republican editors are funny fellows, more facile in fancy than in fact. They make marked points of assertion with a wonderful gift of forgetfulness. The facts of today being hard for their digestion, they go back a year and talk about the balance of trade in April last with both a singular omission to state the facts of that time and the facts which followed the enactment of the Payne-Aldrich law of evil memory. Everyone knows who reads, but our friends, the editors, if they read do not say it, that what they call the deficit for April, 1914 was due to the increase in imported food arising from our own shortage at that time and to the increase of crude materials which we do not ourselves produce or produced insufficiently for use in our manufactures. On the export side for that month the decrease was in shipments of foodstuffs which we could not spare and in crude materials, viz. coal and raw cotton. It was in the item of fully finished manufactures that the decrease was least.

Not only, therefore, were the conditions of which our friends so often and so boldly write the outcome of circumstances which had nothing to do with any law, but they are treated by our friends with an amusing forgetfulness of their own past. If they look at the year following the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, which began its brief career on August 6, 1909 they will find that in March 1910 there was what they call an adverse trade balance of over nineteen million dollars. There was no war then to shut off our trade but it was not until August of 1914, when the war did shut our exports off for a time that the Payne law deficit was equaled. Not only so, but in the year which followed the passage of the Payne-Aldrich law there were five months, in which there was an adverse trade bal-

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN POLAND

New York, May 4.—Isabel Strusinska, a native of Warsaw, who lived in Lemberg, Galicia until her home was destroyed and many of her relatives killed in the recent capture of the city by the Russian army has just arrived here. She will travel in this country, assisting in the work of collecting money for the relief of those of her countrymen who have lost their all in the war.

Madame Strusinska is a Pole. The Polish women, she said today, have more real freedom than the women of Russia. Their opinions are of weight in the affairs of the family, and their advice is always sought by their husbands, not only in business enterprises but in larger, patriotic questions as well.

Though the men have but a restricted franchise, the women are seeking the suffrage for themselves. Both in Lemberg and in Warsaw, there were, before the outbreak of the war, active suffrage societies in connection with the International Suffrage Alliance. These societies were organized by Christoba Pankhurst, four years ago, and include in membership the best-educated and most intelligent women of the two countries.

W. S. Simpson of Newton, Mass., secretary of state of Massachusetts was here on Tuesday the guest of his brother, Joseph W. Simpson of York Harbor.

How Studebaker cars are built — springs

TRIPLE Life springs that flatten the roughest roads

"I'm glad you don't drive thro' the springs," remarked a man who came in the other day. No, we DON'T. And we WON'T, either—as long as we follow the Studebaker ideal of a car that's built for EASY riding and LOW upkeep. For the simple reason that the springs are designed to take up the jounces from the road. Just that ONE thing—to make the car EASIER-riding. And you want them to be elastic and supple.

But when you drive thro' the springs, you lay EXTRA pressure on them—the driving thrusts. Have to make them stiffer, of course. And that makes HARD riding—and also endangers the alignment of the rear axle with the driving mechanism when the car hits a slope or drops into a rut.

So Studebaker drives NOT thro' the springs, but thro' TWO radius rods—and also uses a torque arm to take up the "twist" of driving. And yet the springs are so important in the COMFORT of the car, that Studebaker isn't content merely to design a chassis that gives the springs free play—but has gone further and has spent a fortune in studying the best springs that science can produce. Two years' effort have gone into this research. But it has produced steady and designs that give the Studebaker springs TRIPLE the life and the elasticity and the tough, tensile qualities of other springs. But why let come in and TRY those Studebaker springs—on the road? We'll gladly arrange for it any time you like. And write us now—we want to mail you a book on the Studebaker Chassis and Springs.

-Because it's a

No Cause for Conflict.

In a letter to one of the leading New York newspapers a writer complains of the efforts of the New York State Nurses' Association to prove that the home training given by the Chaumont School of Nursing is practically worthless and that only hospital training can fit a person to properly care for the sick. The writer feels that these efforts are in the interest of a monopoly in the nursing profession, and to this he is opposed, as will be most of those who consider the subject in all its bearings.

The writer states a simple fact when he says there are only two classes of nurses—those with and without hospital training—and asserts that in New York state 85 per cent. of the nursing is done by the latter class. He further contends that not a single case of inefficiency or misconduct has come to light in the large class of home trained nurses, and he looks with pronounced disfavor on what he considers an attempt to make a monopoly of the nursing profession.

And this view will be endorsed by the great majority of thinking and fair-minded people. There is room for both classes of nurses; and no reasonable ground for conflict between the two. Trained nursing has come to be indispensable in many cases, and no sensible man or woman has a word to say against the women who have studied and are practicing the scientific care of the sick and injured. In honor and value their calling is second only to that of the medical profession. For this reason the pay of the trained nurse is beyond the reach of many families and it is well that there should be another class of nurses qualified for the care of ordinary cases and ready to serve at more moderate rates of compensation.

There should be no conflict in this field. There is room enough for all. Let the trained nurses demonstrate their superiority, as they should have no trouble in doing, and depend upon that superiority for prestige and practice rather than upon labor union tactics. There is a wide field for home trained nurses, a field which in many cases would not be occupied if it were not for them. They are performing a useful service in homes where the services of trained nurses cannot be afforded, and this work should not be interfered with in any way.

The trained nurse is all right, but she should depend upon her qualifications and attainments for success and not attempt to elbow from the field those who are doing an equally valuable work in a minor capacity.

Maine is to try the experiment of working prisoners on the highways. This has been done to advantage in some parts of the country, and numerous authorities are considering the proposition. There would seem to be large possibilities along this line in view of the general effort toward highway improvement in all parts of the country. If there be complaint that such an arrangement would be unjust to free labor the remedy, as we have before pointed out, is to add the labor of prisoners to all the paid labor that any county or state can afford to employ.

The latest liquor news from England is that there will be no attempt to enforce prohibition, but the tax on alcoholic drinks is to be doubled to increase the revenues and indirectly discourage the drinking habit. Did the refusal of the Dean of Canterbury to "cut it out" have anything to do with bringing about this decision? He says he has tried it and found that it impaired his health. What would be said of any ordinary man who set up such a claim as that?

Those who predicted that the European war could not last more than six months because of the lack of financial resources now have the opportunity to guess again. The principal countries involved have had no difficulty thus far in floating loan after loan, and neither the end of the "floating" nor the war is yet in sight.

A Brooklyn young woman, exercising her right as a citizen, recently arrested two young men for laughing at her hat and took them to the police station "with the help of by-standers." And yet it is claimed that woman must have the ballot in order to protect her rights.

A Massachusetts young woman has died as the result of having been bitten by a baby. Now who will be the wise legislator to propose that all babies be exterminated or muzzled?

Is the stork addicted to gossip? In some way it has leaked out that he expects to visit the home of Secretary McAdoo, son-in-law of President Wilson, about August 1.

Esther Rose, Arizona Beauty, To Christen New Dreadnought.

Esther Rose, one of the most beautiful young women in the state of Arizona, was selected by the governor of that state to christen the new super-Dreadnought, Arizona, which will be launched in the Brooklyn navy yard on June 19. The Arizona will be the fourth of the great battleships built in the New York navy yard to be launched; the others having been the old flagship Connecticut, the Dreadnought, Florida and the super-Dreadnought New York, the last named the new flagship of the Atlantic fleet. When she goes overboard she probably will be about 65 per cent completed, which indicates that it will be early in the spring of 1916 before she is ready to take her place as a unit of the first super-Dreadnought division of the Atlantic fleet. Her sister ship, the Pennsylvania, was recently launched at Newport News, Va.

OLDEST PERSON IN NEW ENGLAND DEAD

Mrs. Mary D. Stackpole, Aged
105 Years, Dies at Wolfeboro.

Wolfeboro, N. H., May 4.—Mrs. Mary D. Stackpole, the oldest person in New England died at her home here today after a short illness, aged 105 years, 6 months and 19 days.

Mrs. Stackpole retained her faculties up to her death. Born in Tiltonboro, N. H., 1809, she moved to this town about 32 years ago, following the death of her husband, Peter Stackpole, and for several years was employed by different families until over 80 years of age. Since then she had made a reputation for her patchwork quilts and crocheted table mats.

For the last few years she had lived with her daughter, Mrs. Annette Wiggin. Mrs. Wiggin is about 78 years old. On November 8, four days after her 105th birthday, Mrs. Stackpole was burned out of her home, but showed great coolness and directed the saving of the household furnishings.

Mrs. Stackpole's father was John Canney of Somersworth; her mother, Sally French of New Durham.

The funeral will take place Thursday and burial will be in Ladd cemetery at Tiltonboro.

GRAFT ADVERTISING

Space and copies of his paper go to make up the newspaper man's entire stock in trade. These two are all that he has to offer for sale to the public and no one has ever yet given any sort of satisfactory reason why he should ever be asked by anyone to donate them.

One thing newspapers will never be able to understand is why any person will walk into a newspaper office and make himself or herself an object of charity and insist upon what they would obtain to ask for in any other shop or place of business in the town. The principle is the same in the newspaper office as in any dry goods store, the grocery, the drug store, and what a great many people need is to come to recognize it as the same and get off the charity advertising list.

Advertising space in the newspaper is for sale and not to give away. It has a certain intrinsic value in itself that makes it worth money. Copies of the newspaper are for sale, not to give away. If they are worth having they are worth the exceedingly small price asked for them.

The public, or at least a large portion of it, has some very erroneous ideas about these matters, and it is but just to the newspaper folks that these ideas be corrected in accordance with the same business principles that prevail in all other business establishments. In the vast majority of cases this generous charity on the part of the newspapers is blithely taken for granted, and the paper's liberality abused. That which is purely a favor is accepted as a matter of course and what should be requests are touched as demands.

When the courtesy has been performed there is rarely appreciation, and more often dissatisfaction—generally silence.

The result in many other towns and cities has been that a ban has been put upon all free publicity, no matter what its object—even upon the church notice. In these cities such favors as the press bestows are properly appreciated and valued.—"Fourth Estate."

PEOPLES' OPINION

Defends the Veterans

In a communication signed by "Active Veteran," published on Monday in your paper, it will be seen that the Veterans' friends are not welcome to work with the active department in the interest of the coming state convention and for the good of the city. It is apparent that the workers among the Franklin Pierce Association who have for years showed the spirit on such occasions are not wanted, simply because a few regulars have personal feeling against them.

When, O when, will we have peace and harmony? I am not speaking strictly in defense of the veterans, but it must be admitted that they are not affected with selfish motives and when it comes to the handling of big events for this city, many of them have participated in the management of such "long before many of the youths in the regular department were born, and have never been found wanting in this line of duty, any more than they have in fighting the flames."

DISABLED LAUNCH ASSISTED BY THE COAST GUARD

Capt. Charles and Crew of Salisbury Beach Station
Rendered Valuable Aid.

Captain Charles and his crew of the Salisbury Beach Coast Guard Station rendered valuable assistance Tuesday afternoon when they pulled a motor launch which was in distress out of the breakers.

The launch which bore the name of "Uncle Ned" was bound from Biddeford Pool for Boston and when just south of the north jetty became disabled through the breaking down of the engine.

The craft being rendered helpless, drifted into the breakers and was in a rather perilous position as there was a rather heavy sea on at the time.

Captain Charles and crew saw the predicament into which the boat and its passengers had been placed and immediately launched the surf boat and without much difficulty succeeded in pulling the disabled craft to the shore.

Captain Maddock and crew of the Newburyport Coast Guard station also went to the assistance of the disabled craft.

REFERRED TO THE BATTLEFIELD

Spectacular as it was, the Women's Peace Congress at the Hague would have been quite as influential if it had been held in an American county seat. War, controlled by men, prevented a large attendance. Miss Jane Adams who presided, prohibited a free and fair discussion.

In every belligerent nation most women are as intent upon a fight to a finish as are the men. These women had representatives at the Hague, but they could not get a hearing. The best that the good women who assembled there could do was to adopt a resolution providing that plans in behalf of peace should be made to the sovereigns or executives of every nation.

It is probable that if there had been free speech at the Hague, even this expression would have failed. In the abstract, the delegates were all for peace, but that is true also of the fighting women of every country that is at war. If the women at the Hague who wanted to explain why peace movements are impossible at this time had been permitted to speak so freely as they wished, some negative good might have come of the meeting.

Women as a whole have an equal responsibility with men for war. There is no more significance in the conference of a few women at the Hague, ostensibly in favor of peace but restricted as to their utterances, than there would be in a convulse of men at Lake Mohonk, summoned in the name of peace but unable to speak their minds.

Peace must follow, not precede debate. The armies and navies of Europe have monopolized discussion. When Miss Adams ruled against argument she practically left the whole subject to the arbitrament of arms.—New York World Editorial.

WIRE DRAG SURVEYS AT KEY WEST, FLORIDA

Washington, D. C., May 3.—So valuable are the results of the wire drag work done by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey in the vicinity of Key West, that the Navy Department has requested the extension of the work in the region further to the westward. As Key West is a naval base, besides being a railway terminus, and an important commercial port (the necessity of having the whole region systematically examined with the drag is apparent. The principal work of the past season was a very close examination of the West Channel from a point west of Man Key for a distance of 10 miles to a point south of the eastern side of Marquesas Key, and an examination of the doubtful portions of the channel from Key West to Dry Tortugas. A depth of 28 feet is indicated on the charts but many shoals and coral heads with only 22 feet were found. The coral formation in that region abounds in abrupt planities which is it impossible to detect with certainty with the sounding lead as they are of very small area and project irregularly from the general contour of the bottom. The United States Engineers are improving the principal channels by blasting and dredging.

In all about 100 shoal spots were found with the drag during the season, and of these 13 were discovered in a single day. So numerous and so irregularly located were these shoal spots that they could not be described adequately by positions and bearings, and in order to show them it was necessary to publish sections of the chart with corrected soundings in the Notices to Mariners.

Key West is the terminus of the Florida East Coast Railroad and is connected by steamship lines with New York, Tampa, Mobile, Galveston and Havana. The harbor is west and north of the city which is on the west end of the island and is navigable for deep draft vessels. The anchorage is

CURRENT OPINION

Policy of Japan / Not Opposed to American Interests in China.

The commercial policy of Japan in the orient offers no danger whatsoever to the open door policy which the United States has desired for China. Commercially we do not ask for any advantages in China that we are not willing to see extended to the United States and to all of the rest of the world.

We are ready to hold our own by competition, recognizing that we have certain advantages of geographical position and cheapness of labor which our competitors cannot overcome.

Japan's vested rights in China fall in another category. Around their maintenance centers practically all of the present discussion. I do not believe it is presumptuous for me to express the opinion that the United States has absolutely nothing to fear, politically or commercially, from the policies which the Imperial government may contemplate.—By AKIRO SHITO, Department of Commerce, Japan.

due west of the city and north of it in a pocket between the shoals is Man of War Harbor. The wharves along the west side of the city belong to the Navy Department and Lighthouse Service; north of these are the commercial wharves and the railroad wharf is the most northerly of all. Large vessels may go to most of these wharves. There are marine railways for hauling out vessels up to about 1,000 tons.

Some of the principal channels approaching Key West have been improved by the United States Engineers by blasting and dredging to the required depths, and the drag work has been utilized by them in verifying the results of their work.

MORE WAR OVER PEACE

Portland bidding for the peace conference is bringing an end to the European war, might lay stress on the argument that she hasn't nearly so many mosquitoes as there are at Portsmouth.—Boston Globe.

Then what's to prevent Portsmouth from getting back by reminding Portland that she hasn't any navy yard? If this twitting on facts once begins, nobody can venture to say where it will stop.—Biddeford Journal.

Has Portland any brewery?—Boston Globe.

Portland has no brewery but it has such a satisfactory working arrangement with Portsmouth in that connection that it will be better to depend upon mosquitoes if an issue is needed.—Biddeford Journal.

The mentioned possible objections have been satisfactorily disposed of, we would call attention to the fact that a vigorous and determined "swat the fly" campaign is to be early inaugurated in Portland.—Portland Argus.

Now swat the fly.—Biddeford Journal.

If the European nations get hold of any copies of these exchanges of compliments and knocks neither Portsmouth or Portland will stand a look-in as probable sites for the holding of any peace conference.

"PAT" DOYLE DEAD.

Noted Athlete Well Known in This City.

Patrick Doyle of Manchester, known throughout the eastern states as a sensational basketball player during the past several years, died yesterday in that city after a lingering illness. "Pat" Doyle as he was known to followers of athletics, was 35 years old and born in Ireland. He came to Manchester when a boy and quickly showed marked superiority over his competitors as an athlete.

Besides being a sensational basketball player, Doyle was a baseball player of more than ordinary ability and was connected with several strong teams throughout this state. But as a basketball player he gained the greatest prominence, and for years was connected with the strongest teams in the east.

He was well known in this city where he played many times with the Haverhill team and many others.

Founder and President of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

From boyhood days as a tobacco factory laborer to president and active director of one of the world's largest tobacco industries tells the snap-shot life story of Richard J. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Mr. Reynolds believes in advertising. He believes between two and three per cent of his annual sales in advertising. When you know that in 1914 the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company's output amounted to many millions of pounds of tobacco, it isn't difficult to understand just what two or three per cent in advertising means in dollars and cents. The Reynolds advertising account is among the heaviest ever known.

In 1894 Mr. Reynolds first realized that, properly applied and backed by tobacco, worth all he asked for it, advertising was profitable. He invested $4000 that year and saw his business grow over 200,000 pounds. Next year he spent five times as much—and his business doubled!

ANNUAL ELECTION OF ONWARD CLASS

Details Worked Out for Organ Recital and Baseball Team Will Be Organized.

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected at the regular monthly meeting of the Onward Class of the Court Street Christian church on Tuesday evening:

President—Osburn D. Ham.
Vice President—Edward Shaw.
Secretary—L. Goodwin Griffin.
Treasurer—Frank Downing.
Teacher—George W. Shapleigh.

The meeting was in charge of the retiring president, Clarence Smart. There was a good attendance and much business was transacted. The details for the opening recital to be given at the church next Tuesday evening, May 11, were worked out. The men voted to organize a baseball team for the season, and practice will be begun very soon. Rev. Percy Warren Caswell was elected manager, and Wesley Downing, captain.

Arrangements were also made for Sunday evening, May 16th at which time the Onward Class will conduct the services at the Court Street Christian church. It is at this service that the new pipe organ will be presented to the church and society as a gift from the Onward Class. One of the many features of this service will be the music furnished by an orchestra. Following the meeting refreshments were served.

"THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS"

The youth of Abraham Lincoln is said to have inspired the creation of William Dodge's new character of Jim Whitman in "The Road to Happiness" in which that famous "Man from Ilion" of past seasons is to appear at the Portsmouth Theatre on Wednesday, May 12. It is not that the exact circumstances of Lincoln's young life are utilized in this play, but that the entire atmosphere and temperament of Jim Whitman are a sturdy Yankee reflex of the Lincoln type.

Young Abe, the rail splitter of traditional memory, is allied to the young carpenter, Jim Whitman, who spends his nights at the study of the law. The dialogue is said to be full of the spirit of Lincoln's own wit and humor and the entire character pervaded with that staunch Americanism which is the abiding essence of Abraham Lincoln's supreme personality. The scenes of the four act play "The Road to Happiness" are all laid in a small village such as Lincoln himself lived in as a young country lawyer. This semi-rural aspect of the piece gives a chance for many quaint character types. Mr. Dodge himself speaks of his new part of Jim Whitman as being a sort of younger brother of Daniel Voorhees Pike, the hero of the Booth-Tarkington drama and in which he won such fame and fortune and starred so triumphantly for six consecutive seasons. He says that Whitman might really be taken for Pike at that stage of his life when he was studying law and making himself the successful Pike of "The Man from Ilion."

As Mr. Dodge himself is a great worshipper of the character of Lincoln, this very fact of the close, general resemblance of his new part to that of the youthful Lincoln has made him doubly happy in this new characterization of his. Lincoln's own father was a carpenter before him and Lincoln was the best ax-man in his own part of the wilderness of that day. He studied law by the flame of the pine knots. Many of Whitman's sayings are almost echoes of Lincoln's own and Whitman's love scenes have the most exact spirit of the only love letter of Lincoln's still in existence.

LABOR TROUBLES.

State Board Will Attempt to Make Settlement.

The state board of arbitration and conciliation will meet at Dover City hall tomorrow to inquire into the condition of the Farmington Shoe Company factory at Dover. There is a difference between the management and employees as to hours of labor and wages, chiefly the latter. Commissioner John S. B. Davis of the State Labor Department has been looking into the matter and being unable to adjust the differences satisfactorily himself, has requested the board of arbitration to hear both sides and pass judgment. Dr. John H. Neal of Portsmouth, chairman of the board will preside. The other commissioners are George H. Tenny of Claremont and Francis J. Hurley of Manchester. The trouble appears to be mostly in the cutting room of the factory.

BOSTON MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO HIT TREE

Driver Lost Control of Car at Merrimack; Woman Dying.

Merrimack, May 5.—One man was killed and a woman is said to be dying as a result of an automobile accident between Thornton's Ferry and Merrimack proper early today.

A new Cadillac car, numbered 076Y Massachusetts license, and headed toward Manchester collided with a tree opposite the King residence on the State road. The car was demolished.

The machine was evidently a new one, being taken to Manchester for delivery. Indications according to Dr. G. H. Greeley of Merrimack who was called, are that the driver, lost control, as the grass showed the machine went some distance before hitting the tree.

The dead man's name is Adams and he is said to have lived in Boston. The woman was taken in post haste to the hospital at Nashua. A Nashua undertaker took charge of Adams' body.

The injured woman is Miss Bertha Bonn of Nashua, according to the Nashua hospital authorities, who said early today that her injuries were serious. She has a broken left arm, a bad gash over the left eye, and internal injuries are feared.

Adams died almost instantly in the opinion of Dr. Greeley. He was placed under the overturned machine and his injuries included a fractured skull, one leg broken in two places, internal injuries and hemorrhage.

THE LETTER "E"

Someone has advanced the opinion that the letter "e" is the most unfortunate character in the English alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger, and in hell all the time.

But we call his attention to the fact that "e" is never in war, and always in peace. It is the beginning of elegance, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the centre of honesty, makes love perfect and without it there would be no editors, devils nor news.—Charleston Gazette.

County Authorities Investigating Story of Franklin Woman.

North Hampton Farmer Give Suspended Fine for Violating Quarantine Law.

Franklin, N. H., May 4.—Dr. James B. Woodman, the attending physician expressed the opinion today that Mrs. Christie Field Moody who took poison tablets April 24, would recover.

The young woman who is 23 years of age took four tablets containing 30 grains, enough to kill several men. Her recovery has been despaired of until today.

Mrs. Moody has told the authorities that the poison was given her by a Boston man with whom she had been keeping company. It is claimed that he became infatuated with another woman.

The story told by Mrs. Moody is being investigated by the county officials.

Mrs. Moody lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Mahala Howe on Sanborn street. This was her second attempt at suicide. A few years ago, following trouble over a love affair she tried to jump into the river, but was caught at the bank by her grandmother.

Joseph W. Simpson and ex-postmaster Fremont Varrell of York were visitors here on Tuesday.

Charles E. Swaine of North Hampton pleaded guilty to violation of the federal quarantine laws in the United States district court at Concord on Tuesday, before Judge George H. Bingham. He was given a suspended fine of $100 on payment of costs.

The offense took place while the embargo against bringing animals into this state during the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease. Commissioner Andrew L. Folger of the state agricultural department worked up the case and turned over the evidence to the federal officers, who arrested Swaine. He was charged with bringing swine from Melrose, Mass., North Hampton.

The Lynn item seems to doubt the toll road at Ferry, Vt., which has just been abolished, was the last one in New England. "How about the one at Portsmouth, leading to 'Dover Point'?" it asks. Can anybody mention any other New England toll roads that have been overlooked?—Boston Globe.

For the benefit of the Lynn item at the Boston Globe we are delighted to say that it is only a bridge on which tolls are collected. And we also have two others.

WANT HARBOR OF REFUGE AT CAPE NEDDICK

Members of the Bay Haven Yacht Club, Yachtsmen and Others Interested in Project

Louis W. Crockett of Manchester, president of the Bay Haven Yacht Club of York Beach, Jack Young, Commodore of the aforesaid club, and other deep water mariners are greatly interested in the move to have a harbor of refuge provided at the mouth of the Cape Neddick river, York.

The proposed harbor of refuge would provide a "safely first" harbor for all vessels passing between this port, Portsmouth, N. H., and Northern Massachusetts ports. The men engaged in the fishing industry are also strongly in favor of the proposed harbor of refuge and it is also argued that the improvement would provide facilities for receiving and delivering freight and commodities of various kinds, lumber and coal included, thus producing an increase in the business of the community and the reduction of freight charges at present existing as a result of overland and all rail service only.

Those endorsing the proposition claim that the mouth of the Cape Neddick river provides a natural harbor in that water is 30 feet deep at mean low water and that no expense of dredging is necessary. It is claimed that there is a natural foundation for the construction of a breakwater which would assure protection for rattacking shelter from storms.

The petition follows:

Proposed Improvements Mouth of Cape Neddick River, York, Maine

We the undersigned having noted the improvements as proposed at the mouth of Cape Neddick River, York, Maine and as provided for by an enactment of the Sixty-third Congress, wish to be recorded as in favor of such improvements in the form of a breakwater extending in a southerly direction from Yeare Point as shown on Chart No. 223 Coast and Geodetic Survey herewith attached for the following reasons, viz:

First—To provide a harbor of refuge for the coastwise trade, especially for those vessels passing between Portland, Maine and Portsmouth, N. H., and Northern Massachusetts ports, there being at present no easily entered harbor of refuge between Portland and Portsmouth, as such harbor of refuge added safely and conveniently would be provided to the towboat and freight interests of western Maine and eastern New Hampshire. The towboat interests have frequent need for this midway harbor; as such harbor of refuge protection would also be afforded to the fishing fleet now so rapidly increasing in number in the vicinity of and around Boone Island Light Station, the mouth of Cape Neddick River being but six miles away; also as a harbor of refuge would protect a number of smaller craft, both commercial and otherwise, who are seeking to lay over in a properly protected harbor easily entered between Portsmouth and Portland.

Second—As a port of shipment in order to provide facilities for receiving and delivering freight and commodities of various kinds, lumber and coal included, thus providing an increase in the business of the community and the reduction of freight charges at present existing as a result of overland and all rail service only.

Third—Having been properly chartered by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and buoys having already been established by the Department of Commerce through the Bureau of Light-houses, frequent and continued use of the river is ensuing and the demand for protection in time of storm is an increasing one.

Fourth—Having a depth as does the mouth of the river of thirty (30) feet at mean low water, no expense of dredging is necessary in order to afford proper anchorage facilities. Furthermore with the natural foundation as provided by the submerged ledges extending in a southerly direction from Yeare Point, a breakwater built upon such foundation could be erected at a minimum cost. Protected as is the mouth of the river by Cape Neddick promontory natural protection from westerly disturbances is provided; hence with the artificial protection afforded by the breakwater from northeasterly and easterly storms the efficiency of its protection would establish the harbor as a safeguarded harbor of refuge which is in our judgment much needed at this location.

When the new harbor of refuge is completed it is to be said that Commodore Crockett and his able assistants will give a house warming that will put Maine in the front ranks of the prohibition states.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE NOTES

Mrs. McNellan, a suffrage worker of West Virginia says: "It is humiliating to think that women have to wait for the verdict of a vast number of unintelligent men, who with those more inimical to the advancing civilization must give us the power to vote." Evidently she does not believe in Democracy!

Out of New York's 2,757,000 women, more than 1,000,000 were foreign born.

"Two thirds of the men in the new Kitchener army are married," says Mrs. Pankhurst triumphantly. "British women who have control over men are insisting that they join the British forces. It's the bachelors who are holding back. They lack the women's influence."

"What an awful state of things is here revealed! In America we are continually informed by the suffragists that if the women had their way there would be no fighting. Give us the ballot, they say, and we will stop wars. But note in Mrs. Pankhurst's speech the strong implication, even the open avowal, that English women approve war, that far from trying to discourage fighting they are actually prodigal the men on to battle."

Mrs. Teresa Crowley, at a recent suffrage meeting said: "Even if it were true that women would not exercise the right to vote if they had it that was not an argument against giving it to those who would use it." No, not if you don't care in the least what the consequences are and if you are perfectly willing that the power of the vicious interests and the ward heelers should be doubled, with no gain in the vote against them. This is just where suffragists and anti-suffragists differ most strongly. The Rev. Anna Shaw says she wants the vote even if all women vote wrong, if the vote leads them all to desert their husbands and neglect their children and she believes thousands of other suffragists agree with her.

Dr. Anna Shaw said the other day, "All we ask of man is that he stand out of our sunshine."

Good women divide, but vice casts a solid vote.

TO BE A PERFECT HUSBAND

The perfect husband should consider his wife's happiness before anything else.

Married men are often unsatisfactory persons in a home not because they are violent by nature, or by disposition sulky, but because they take a wrong view of marriage.

Thus a husband will sometimes persuade himself that it is unwise of him never to be discourteous to his wife, and that his wife will appreciate him more if he is unkind to her at intervals. There are women who are so much in love with their husbands as to pardon any brutality, but for a man to suppose that love is built up by unkindness is absurd.

A husband to be perfect should be all that his wife desires. By pleasing her he makes happy the one who can be his best comforter and best friend.

A constant source of unhappiness in married life is the want of faith on the part of both husband and wife. Angelina has been used to 20 kisses a day. One day a number drops to 19 and Angelina gives way to tears, with out attempting to find a reason for the omission. She imagined at once that her husband's love for her is waning. Then in order to let him see that if he can be cold she can be cold also, she receives his caresses without appreciation and endless complications ensue.

The perfect husband should hold his wife's happiness before everything else, even before business. New business may be built up by new energy, but happiness once lost may not be recovered. What a man fails to recognize generally is that a woman's happiness depends on trifles. The perfect husband will never omit a kiss never forget a birthday, never neglect the little bunch of flowers that gives his wife pleasure. These attentions show thoughtfulness and a steady affection; they are the crumbs of love that sustain a woman through the monotony and dullness of home life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MEETS OLD TIME FRIENDS

NEW ADJUTANT GENERAL LOOKS OVER COAST DEFENSES

A visitor here on Tuesday was Senator Charles Howard, the new Adjutant General. His coming was not heralded like some of his predecessors, and the welcome extended was none the less cordial. General Howard has seen service, like some of the rest of us, but nevertheless is a very agreeable comrade, except on the matter of armory commissions. The new Adjutant General was shown about the fortifications at the mouth of the harbor and it is said that Captain Wallace discharged one of those mines in order to give a shock to Senator Cain, way up in Keene. On his return to Portsmouth the Adjutant General was met by Senator John G. Parsons and the time was pleasantly occupied until General Howard took his departure for Concord.

THREE STATES HAIL OPENING OF DALLOS-CELLO CANAL

Portland, Ore., May 4—Washington, Oregon and Idaho celebrate this week the opening of the Dallos-Cello Canal, assuring a continuous waterway from the Pacific 470 miles inland to Lewiston, Idaho, on the Snake River, and to Priest Rapids, on the Columbia river a distance of 460 miles.

The watershed of the Columbia River and its tributaries embraces an area of approximately 250,000 square miles in the United States and an additional 50,000 in British Columbia, making a territory larger than the German Empire and larger than the entire New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia combined. The soil resources and climatic conditions of this territory are of such a nature as to stamp it among the world's greatest productive regions, which ultimately, when fully developed, will be able to support proportionately the largest population of any similar section of the globe.

The opening of the Columbia river and its tributaries, which will be given emphasis by the dedication of The Dallos-Cello Canal, marks an important step in the transportation and industrial welfare of the region.

The official ceremonies of dedication are to be staged in the capital basin at Big Eddy, Ore., Wednesday, May 5, at 2 p. m. in which prominent people from all over the Pacific northwest and the entire nation will participate. Following the official ceremonies a celebration with distinctive features will take place at The Dallos Ore., the afternoon and evening of May 5.

The Dallos-Cello canal is on the Oregon side of the Columbia and parallels the river for eight and one-half miles. It takes the place of the old Oregon state portage railway.

Work of construction was begun in 1908 and has proceeded continuously to the present with the exception of interruptions in 1912 and 1914 due to failure of congress to make the necessary appropriations. The total cost of construction will be approximately $4,850,000 including $110,000 expended for the improvement of the Three Mile Rapids, near The Dallos.

The work has been done under the supervision of the United States army engineer in charge of the first Portland Ore., district with other officers in actual charge of the field work.

The minimum depth of the new waterway is eight feet, and as the locks are 45 feet in width and 300 feet in length, with seven feet over the lock sill, the dimensions, 45x300x7 circumscribe the size of the vessels that may go through the canal.

The celebrations began today at Lewiston, with a historical parade and a pageant on the river. From Lewiston, following the celebration there, a fleet of steamers will start down the new waterway, attending the ceremonies at each city. These will continue every day, terminating at Astoria, Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8.

WEAVING FINEST SILK

Syrian Women Stand for Hours Watching Cocoons Boil Until Their Gum Melts and Releases Thread.

Orient and Occident have both paid tribute to the spell of that soft, clinging fabric—silk. Kings and Princes have decked themselves with its richness. From the farthest points of the earth it has been brought as spoil. Queens and Princesses have held it the only fitting material to show their regal state, imitated or cheaply woven it may be had today by the masses, but there have been wonderful "poems in silk" from the weaver's loom that have brought as high as $75 a yard. Though catering to the needs of these of high estate silk really is of lowly origin. Silk weaving is one of the oldest crafts. Mulberry leaves on Mt. Lebanon have fed the tiny silk worms, and primitive women in Syria for ages have been added in preparing the cocoons for the silk weavers, added in the making of a fabric deemed far too elegant for them to wear.

In Syria even today the peasant women stand hour after hour in the largest silk-reeling mill watching the boiling cocoons until the fiber end is loosened. The hot water softens the natural gum in the silk and allows it to be wound off. The silk filaments gathered from the cocoons are then passed through glass eyes to form a thread, and very primitive tools and and weld five of the tiny, raw silk threads into one.

Even the children help to prepare the raw silk for the weavers on old-fashioned unwieldy reeling machines. The threads are reeled into large bales called "knots." Each bunch of bales is a "moss" and each bundle a book, in which form large quantities are exported to England and the United States to be woven.

Some of the finest silk, however, is woven right in Syria. The Arab weavers do not work in the most improved, up-to-date methods, but they are here daily craftsmen and make a wonderful job of what they do. There is no labor merely for gain; theirs is an occupation which is an art to them, into which they put the best of their efforts. And so, despite the primitive means employed in its manufacture, some of the silk that comes from their looms is the most costly on the market.—Detroit Tribune.

GOOD RESULTS IN THE GIPSY MOTH CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., May 4—Satisfactory progress in the campaign against the gipsy moth and the brown-tail moth in New England since the reorganization of the work in March, 1913, is announced in a report on this work just issued by the Bureau of Entomology of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Because, however, of the enormous area already infested it has been impossible to cover much of the woodland and the insect has gradually spread. On the other hand, scouting work and hand treatment of the egg clusters have materially checked this spread toward the west, and other methods of control have greatly reduced the infestation in certain areas.

At the present time the campaign is being conducted along two distinct lines: First, there is the field work which consists of scouting and hand treatment of the insects, and inspection of products shipped from the infested area in order to prevent the spread of the pest; second, experimental work is being carried on in order to determine the advantages to be derived from the introduction of parasites and other natural enemies of the moths, and also in order to ascertain the best methods of treating woods and forests in order to deprive the pests of their food. An average of about 275 men is employed in these two branches of the work.

Excellent results are reported from the imported parasites of the gipsy moth during the past year. Over 2,000 colonies have been located in a large number of towns.

Another factor in keeping down the gipsy and brown-tail is the wilt disease but the study of this is for certain technical reasons very difficult, and a large amount of work is still necessary in order to discover the conditions most favorable for its increase and development.

A matter on which the report lays special emphasis is the fact that a number of trees are not favorable for the support of the gipsy moth larvae. Wherever possible, therefore, these should be substituted for trees that are especially susceptible. This can frequently be done with distinct commercial importance. For example, in many of the infested areas there are large numbers of oaks and gray birch. These are very susceptible to the attack of the gipsy moth. The white pine on the other hand is immune except when growing with oak or gray birch, and if substituted for the other trees will grow to much better advantage and yield a much more valuable product. A list of trees which are susceptible and of those which are not is contained in the report.

NATIVE INNS OF JAPAN.

Where You Shed Your Shoes Before Going to Your Room.

The entrance to native inns in Japan is most always a roofed verandah with a well-trodden earthen floor backed by a raised platform about 20 inches high, forming at once a seat and the outer extension of the first floor.

A scattered line of shoes, sandals and geta belonging to the guests usually lie along it, and at one side is a cupboard where umbrellas and footgear are deposited. A big drop octagon clock on the wall, a low desk, a hibachi and a pile of cushions generally complete the office equipment.

The traveler's hiriki customarily deposits him in the vestibule, at the edge of the platform, beneath the overhang of the roof. "Shouts of 'O Kavan' (honorable visitors) apprise the masters and the maids that a guest is arriving, and all hurry forward to receive him, uttering cries of welcome and bowing glossy black heads to the floor.

As the traveler sits on the platform a servant removes his shoes and others divest him of his wraps. Shoes are seldom cleaned, and if they be wet or muddy they are left untouched. Habitual frequenters of inns often provide themselves with foot coverings to slip over shoes and thus be able to wear them to the apartment. Without them one must don the hellish slippers furnished or go to one's room unshod.—Kansas City Times.

UNITED STATES IS MENACED BY PLAGUE

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL TELLS MEDICAL ASSOCIATION TO THAT EFFECT

Fort Worth, Texas, May 1.—The United States is "seriously menaced by bubonic plague," Assistant Surgeon General W. C. Rucker of the United States Public Health Service, told the members of the state medical association here tonight.

The plague, he said, was carried by ship rats. The entire Pacific Coast is threatened by rats brought from the Orient from Ecuador and Peru. The Gulf coast is menaced by plague in Havana, and disease having been found among the New Orleans rodents May 9 last. The Atlantic coast is likely to get the plague from the eastern coast of South America and from European, African and Asiatic ports. "No modern city can afford to regard rat-proofing as a luxury," declared Dr. Rucker.

A STATEMENT PREPARED BY C. C. CRISLER CONCERNING THE LIFE AND LABORS OF MRS. ELLEN G. WHITE

In the minds of many thinking men and women of today there is a growing conviction that the world is rapidly approaching a crisis in its history, and that soon we shall reach the end of the age in which we are living. This conviction is voiced in manifold ways. Witness, among Protestants, the slogan of the great missionary societies—"The gospel to all the world in this generation." Witness, among Roman Catholics, the recent utterances of His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, on the significance of the unprecedented loss of life in the Great War now in progress. "Does it not seem," he inquires, "that the Scriptures are being fulfilled—'nation shall rise against nation, and there shall be sorrow throughout the world, and then shall the end come.'"

It was this conviction concerning the approaching end of the age that characterized above all things else the life-long labors of Mrs. Ellen G. White, the announcement of whose death at her home near St. Helena, Cal., comes as somewhat of a shock to many of the readers of this paper. For full seventy years Mrs. White was connected with a movement, which has as its avowed purpose the preparation of a people for the personal return of Christ to this earth; and during her lifetime she saw this movement develop from its very inception to its present world-wide proportions.

Born in Gorham, Maine, Nov. 26, 1827, of Methodist parentage, Ellen Gould Harmon enjoyed in early childhood a rich Christian experience, and while yet a mere girl was brought into contact with the Advent Movement of William Miller's day, which culminated in the bitter disappointment that came to the "Millenarians" as they were termed, in the fall of 1844. Like others of her associates in that remarkable spiritual awakening, which swept through many lands during the early forties, Miss Harmon rested her faith on the supposedly near fulfillment of certain prophetic portions of the Bible. When the interpretation placed upon these scriptures proved incorrect at least in part, the advent believers became the derision of scoffers and the laughing-stock of a glib-tongued public, as many an unregenerate remonstrance among us today will freely testify.

That which excited the ardor of many, however, led others of a more calm and dispassionate temperament to investigate anew the foundation of their belief. In order to learn, if possible, where in their exposition of prophetic truth had been incorrect, Miss Harmon, then a girl of seventeen, was among the number who held to their recent Christian experience as something altogether too precious to be cast lightly aside; and out of the searching review given the Bible evidences regarding the second advent of Christ, she gained, with others, a clear conception of God's plan throughout the ages and of His purpose for the present generation, to which she consistently held all the rest of her lifetime.

Foremost among those who in 1845 were leading out in the new movement with which the late Mrs. White was so long identified, may be mentioned Captain Joseph Bates, of Fairhaven, Mass.; James White and J. N. Andrews, of Maine; and Hiram Edson, of New York state. Chief among the doctrines which this group of Bible students and their associates held in common as Scriptural, was the second advent of Christ within the near future, and preceding the millennium. Their study led them to believe positively that of the day and the hour of Christ's second coming, no man can speak with assurance; but that by means of the prophetic signs foreshadowing His return, notably those foretold by Christ himself as recorded in the twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew's gospel, the world today need not remain in ignorance regarding the nearness of the end.

With this doctrine of the advent were associated kindred doctrines which they held to be Biblical, including the restoration of Edenic conditions in the earth made new; and they urged as fundamental the binding claims of all the precepts of the decalogue, including the fourth commandment enjoining the observance of the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath. Out of the promulgation of these teachings there developed a new sect of Christian believers, now known as Seventh-day Adventists.

In 1846 Miss Harmon was united in marriage with Elder James White, and for a third of a century labored by his side as a helper and an associate in the advocacy of the Bible truths which they regarded as due to the world in this generation. At first, while few in number, the Seventh-day Adventist believers resorted to the printed page as a means of disseminating their doctrines. This led to the founding in 1849 of a periodical, which under the name "The Advent Review and Sabbath Herald" is still published from the denominational headquarters at Washington, D. C. Many tracts and pamphlets, and later on books, were published; and in this early use of the press Mrs. White shared with her husband and their friends the toils and privations incident to pioneer effort. She wrote much on Bible themes and on practical godliness, and took an especial interest in "The Youth's Instructor," a periodical founded by Mr. White in 1853, and thriving still.

In her Christian service, Mrs. White endeavored always to keep in closest touch with the world's activities and needs. As an evangelist, she often preached to thousands, her voice having unusual resonance and carrying power; and as a worker in temperance and health lines she wielded a wide influence. In the fifties, and again early in the sixties, she was thrown into contact with disease in her own home and in the communities where she lived; and with these experiences came some clear conceptions as to the causes underlying disease and the rational methods by which health may be regained. Impressed with the importance of these truths, she toured the East and the Middle West in the interests of a radical reform in dietetics and in the treatment of disease; and not content to leave the matter thus without further effort, in 1860 she united with Mr. White and others in the founding of a health institute in Michigan where health and temperance principles might be exemplified. The institution prospered, and has attained world-wide fame.

In the same year that marked the founding of the sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich., she encouraged the friends of health reform to start a health journal, and for many years contributed to its columns. Since those humble beginnings in 1866, she has aided in the establishment of many sanitariums in various parts of the world, and has also witnessed the spread of health principles through several monthly journals, including "Life and Health," familiarly known as "the national health journal," and similar publications issued in Great Britain, Scandinavia, Germany, India, Mexico, Australia, and other lands.

To the health and temperance cause, Mrs. White contributed much. Of her published writings, her latest health book, "The Ministry of Healing," which appeared in 1906, has already had a circulation of nearly two hundred thousand copies, and has been translated into several languages.

Of Mrs. White's work as an evangelist, of her public lectures in nearly every state in the Union, of her missionary travels in Europe from 1885-87 and in Australasia from 1897-99, of her contributions to the public press, and of her unceasing devotion to the advent cause she espoused in early youth it is not necessary to say more than that to but few American women has it been given to do a broader and more far-reaching work in Christian service than was accomplished by her notwithstanding her frail constitution and her lack of other favoring circumstances. Yet for all that was wrought in the name of the Master whom she loved, she herself steadfastly disclaimed any honor. She believed that the Lord had been her teacher and her guide through the years, and that only as He had taught her by His Holy Spirit, and had strengthened her to bear the messages he gave her for His children, had she been enabled to accomplish her life-mission.

It is a fact well known to many of the readers of this paper, that from the very beginning of her public labors, Mrs. White has been regarded by those who best knew her, as one specially favored of God in open visions and visions given her during the night season. Yet she never assumed the title of prophet, choosing rather to define her position in the church as a messenger with a message. In all her teachings she insisted on a return to sound Scriptural doctrine and to apostolic simplicity. She recognized the Bible, and the Bible alone, as the supreme rule of faith and practice. She often stated that her mission was not to attempt to teach any new principles, but rather to call attention anew to principles plainly taught in the Bible for the observance of all, whatever their creed or affiliation.

Mrs. White's books, several of which have been issued in illustrated form for subscription sale, dealt almost wholly with Bible themes and with the closely related topics of health and the home. These publications have been issued in many languages, and have already found their way into more than a million homes in America, and into full as many homes in other lands.

The long life granted Mrs. White gave her the unusual opportunity of seeing the denomination with which she was connected at the very beginning of its history, develop from a mere handful of believers into a strong evangelizing agency, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., with general and local conference organizations covering every portion of the United States and Canada—where by far the larger number of adherents dwell; with a constituency of over thirty-five thousand in Europe alone, of upwards of five thousand in Australasia, and of nearly five thousand in South America; with mission stations in many heathen lands supported by a mission board with an annual revenue of more than half a million dollars; and with strong health, educational, and publishing centers all over the world.

During the last few months of her life, Mrs. White found much satisfaction in reviewing the providences of the past, and in looking forward to the final triumph which she believed awaits the cause to which she had given her all. Never did she count herself as a leader, but rather as a helper and counselor; she therefore entertained no anxious forebodings as to the future of the cause she had endeavored to advance. She felt confident that the prospering hand of God would continue to rest upon those with whom she had been associated in labor in many lands, and that under their united guidance would be proclaimed throughout the world, to every nation, kindred, and tongue, the teachings of the Bible which Seventh-day Adventists claim will prepare a people for the end of the age and the ushering in of God's everlasting kingdom.

WITH THE SPORTS

Figures show that the Federal league is developing a set of youthful stars who bid fair to rival in prowess the most famous of its best known veterans and who always are the equals of youths their own age in the two older major leagues. Around a nucleus of experienced ball players there has been formed a corps of brilliant youngsters, their talent trained to a degree approaching perfection, whom the counts of the new league have drawn from minor leagues and colleges in numbers easily equalling that drafted by the National and American.

Ed Zwilling of the Chicago White Sox has developed wonderfully as an outfielder. He covers an immense amount of ground and catches in seemingly impossible drives. Recent figures show Zwilling is hitting at a .285 clip. For comparison, as illustrating that his work with the stick is not due to poor pitching—the average of Knott, one of the best hitters who ever swung a club in the National league, may be noted—250 for the season.

The hitting of Western, third baseman for the Brooklyn Federals has been of a sensational nature. He has hit for a .478 average so far, while Hal Chase of the Buffalo Bisons has hit for only .253. Brooklyn has another hard hitter in Cooper, who in fifteen games has clouted at a rate of 370.

Felder Jones one of the wizards of the National pastime, has developed a powerful batter in young Tobin, whose extra base hits make him a terror to pitchers. His batting percentage so far this year is .285, while Rebel Gaves, a star batter in the National League is credited with 255 against Federal league pitching this season.

Hanford and Black, little heard of before pointing the new circuit, have earned as much praise for their fielding as for their hitting. Charles Deal and Leslie Mann who left the world champion, Braves for the St. Louis and Chicago teams of the Federal league respectively, startle fans with the fanciest sort of fielding, and in Kenworthy, Rawlins and Chaddbourne, practically newcomers in big league baseball, Kansas City has found three exceptionally clever defensive players. In his first 36 chances, Rawlins, holding down the difficult position of short stop, made but one error, while Chaddbourne takes care of scores of territory in center field.

Duncan of Baltimore is hitting at the rate of .438 and is fielding well enough to fit in with the speedy work shown around second base for the Terrapins by Kanne and Doolan.

Not only in hitting and fielding are the youths of the Federal league shining, but in pitching also. Facing the hard hitters of the Eastern division of the league, Schultz of the Buffalo club has allowed only three runs to the game—a total of 15 for the five games he has pitched. Better still is the record of McConnell of Chicago, though he has worked in fewer contests. McConnell has allowed only one run in twenty-one innings, a much better record than those of the pitchers who were favored over him by Manager Bruns of the Chicago Nationals.

McConnell surely would fill a big hole in the Cubs' pitching staff now. Other youngsters whose work so far stamps them as finds are Rogge of Pittsburgh and Moran and Whitehouse of Newark, three of the most promising pitchers in fast company.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for enemas.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years, his old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force you to strain or to feel that you have a "dark brown mouth" feeling and then a bad breath—adult, tired, nervous, sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

COL. GOSS SWALLOWED PINT OF WOOD ALCOHOL

Dover, N. H., May 5.—New developments occurred today in connection with the death of Col. Charles Carpenter Goss, head of the Merchants National Bank in this city. William A. Goss, a brother of Col. Goss, and the family physician, Dr. E. B. Batchelder, said today that the colonel had swallowed nearly a pint of poisoned alcohol and that he had afterward cut his throat to end the agony. The doctor stated that Col. Goss was a great sufferer from acute diabetes.

Mr. S. A. Thompson of this city began to examine the books of the savings bank on Saturday and said that the books to date show absolutely nothing wrong.

Officers of the Merchants National Bank today said that the bank was all right and all persons asking questions relative to the bank's condition were referred to National Bank Examiner Dean of Manchester.

OPENING DAY OF SALE WAS A GRAND SUCCESS

Freeman's Hall Scene of Pretty Decorations for May Festival Held By Ladies' Social Circle.

Freeman's Hall was a scene of gaiety on Tuesday evening at the opening night of the May Festival given under the auspices of the Ladies' Social Circle of the Universalist church.

The hall was beautifully decorated and presented a festive appearance. The decorations were the work of Chester C. Miller of Brookline, Mass., who has had many years experience in the R. H. White Company store in Boston. The hall never looked prettier on any such occasion.

The affair opened in the afternoon when the many things usually at a sale of this kind were offered to the public. At 6 o'clock supper was served which embraced the following menu:

Lobster Salad
Hot Rolls Olives
Fancy Pies Assorted Cake
Coffee

The supper was in charge of the following committee: Mrs. George D. Whittier, chairman; Mrs. Porter Evans, Mrs. George Humphries, Mrs. Charles Greene, Mrs. Granville Blake, Mrs. Edward Howley and Mrs. Charles Smith.

The ladies catered to a large number and added one more score to their enviable reputation of being most efficient caterers. The ladies served many more than they had anticipated and the supper was very successful.

One the right, from the door, one saw a most attractive arrangement of booths, which included the following:

Fancy Work Booth—A creation of red roses and lilies, made a very striking appearance and was in charge of Mrs. Alice Entwistle, chairman; Mrs. George Humphries, Mrs. Edward W. Attwood, Mrs. George D. Whittier, Mrs. Alvin H. Redden, Mrs. Mabel H. Shedd, Mrs. Stacy Hall, Mrs. Adam DeRochemont, Mrs. Mary Cole, Mrs. Charles W. Woodman, Mrs. Edward Goudy, Mrs. Merritt Delano.

Postcard Table and May Basket—Another effect of red roses, in charge of Miss Marion Gray and Viola Crompton.

A booth belonging to Joseph M. Hasset; a booth belonging to D. C. Mathews Co., and another belonging to Henry P. Payne.

The Toy Booth was in Japanese effect with parasols and lanterns used in profusion. Here dolls and toys were offered for sale. This was in charge of Mrs. Samuel Taxis, chairman; Mr. Samuel Taxis, Mrs. Sherburne Donnell, Misses Heloise Whittier and Madeline Paul.

On the other side were the fruit and punch table decorated in wisteria and Easter lilies, and this was in charge of Mrs. George Dixon, chairman; Mrs. Clarence Paul, Miss Janet Delano, Mrs. Fred Gray, Mrs. John Hinton, Mrs. Ella F. Lord, Miss Jessie Lombard.

The cooked food table was decorated in green and white and was in charge of Mrs. William C. White, chairman; Mrs. Freeman R. Garrett, sub-chairman; Mr. Albert Garland, Mrs. Clarence Paul, Mrs. Alice Johnson, Mrs. Sadie Newton, Mrs. Hill.

Then came booths of the George B. French Company, Portsmouth Gas Company, prettily arranged in yellow and white, and the Rockingham Light and Power Company prettily decorated in green and white.

In the center of the hall the flower booth made a pleasing spectacle and was a rich creation of autumnal leaves, palms and flowers in canopy effect.

Potted plants were offered for sale and were in charge of Miss Mabel Shedd, Mrs. Asa Craig, Miss Alice White, Miss Nellie Whitcomb, Miss Ruth Fuller, Mr. Asa Craig, the local florist, located the flowers and leaves used in the decorating.

In the center of the floor towards the back of the hall was the convenient candy and apron booth, which was a large canopy effect, arranged in a very pretty bower of yellow roses. This was in charge of the following: aprons, Mrs. Stacy Hall, chairman; Mrs. Richard J. Walden, Mrs. Henry Wendell and Mrs. Andrew Wendell. Candy—Miss Phyllis Hall, chairman; Mrs. A. Leon Smith, Mrs. J. Verne Wood, Miss Miriam Pollard, Miss Dorothy Pollard, Miss May Rand, Miss Gertrude Hett, Miss Edith Moulton, Miss Susie Moulton and Miss Almedia Harriman.

MR. PRINGLE WAS RE-ELECTED

Will Again Be Superintendent of Portsmouth's Schools; Redistricting of City by Special Committee.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held Tuesday evening, Mayor Harry B. Yeaton presiding. The financial reports, superintendent's report and bills were read and accepted.

Superintendent James N. Pringle was unanimously re-elected for the year of 1915-16, not a vote against him being cast. This was in the nature of an endorsement of Mr. Pringle's efficiency.

The question of the redistricting of the city as regards school lines was then opened for discussion. The opening of the Lafayette school has made necessary the drawing of new lines, but owing to the fact that the question will require much careful study it was voted to put the matter into the hands of a special committee. This committee will be appointed by the mayor, to consist of three members and Superintendent Pringle.

PORTSMOUTH THEATRE PROGRAMME

No pictures or vaudeville today on account of Elks' Benefit.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in a two part photoplay called "Thirteen Dollars"

The acting in this picture is without a flaw. Francis X. Bushman, in the person of Arnold Austin, excites and sustains chief interest. His make-up as the half-famished down and out in the bread line—white, by the way, is a real scene taken near Dunes Hotel, Chicago—is thoroughly realistic as a type. This is one fine picture with a surprise on the end. For Thursday only.

PICTURES FOR THE BRIDE

Did you ever know a newly married pair to be over-supplied with pictures? It's a rare thing to find them with enough. Remember: That practically every room in the house NEEDS PICTURES. No room is furnished without them. For a six-room house a modest estimate will total
